Concept Note

India is celebrating 75 years of independence and the glorious history of its people, culture and achievements through Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav. It is said that literature is a mirror of the society and its role is vital in nation building. A nation is a community of people formed on the basis of a combination of shared features such as language, history, ethnicity, culture and/or territory. A nation is thus the collective identity of a group of people understood as defined by those features. Nation has been conceptualized by different writers and critics according to their own perception of the term. Various authors have explored the idea of the Indian nation-state in postcolonial India. The notion of writing the nation remains firmly rooted in the cultural history of the land through its manifestation in literature.

The aim of this student led seminar is to navigate through the changing notions of the Nation and identifying the role of Literature in that process. Not just Indian English Literature but the seminar also aims to touch upon Regional languages and literature and its role in Nation-building.
